

electd by a majority of 63 votes. At the end of his next term he did not seek re-election. He took great interest in the establishment of free drinking water fountains in different parts of the city. He also interested himself deeply in the question of providing public seats in various quarters of the town, and was in this way the leader of a movement which has become very popular in other towns, and has been of great advantage to exhausted pedestrians and others. Mr. Mally, it may be said, had more to do with the inauguration of Sefton Park than anybody else. It was owing to his exertions that the park was bought. At the time Mr. Mally was a member of the Parks Committee, and it was he who was entrusted with the arrangements which were subsequently made with the artist who came over from France to make the landscape garden. The whole idea was originally his, and was worked out by him to a successful issue. In addition to his public duties as a City Councillor, Mr. Mally took a keen interest in other philanthropic work. He was the founder of the North-end Mission, and he was actively engaged for a long time in the arrangements of various local charities, which have since been got into such complete working form. The foundation of the first night school, which was established in Beaufort-street, Liverpool, in 1852, was due to his exertions. To Mr. Mally, was due the credit of having been the means of getting the Liverpool Gymnasium, in Myrtle-street, erected. He was further instrumental in introducing the present system of lighting gas lamps in the streets, having brought the long pole from Geneva, which superseded the step ladder apparatus formerly in vogue. Mr. Mally leaves a family of seven sons and one daughter. He was a member of the well known firm of Mally, Fergat and Company, cotton merchants.

The funeral will take place at the Old Chapel, Texteth Park, to-morrow, at twelve o'clock.
